Digital Computers Rely On Logical Statements

Mathematics played a significant role in every aspect of our lives, in balancing a checkbook, or in keeping accounts, for instance. On the professional level, it was used in medicine, engineering, chemistry, physics, and more so in the future with our advancing technology.

For example, operations with the logical statements used in mathematics were also applied to the design of electronic digital computers. According to Ed Boughton, Department Chairman, one had to know the logical steps in any solution before one could properly program it into computer language.

More than two thirds of the student body were enrolled in math courses. For the college bound student a total of three years of mathematics were required. Among the various math courses offered were Algebra I, Algebra II, Geometry, and Math Analysis.

Science Is Bridges, Autos, Cells, Formulas

In October seniors openly hauled loads of balsa wood, string, and glue across campus.-No smuggling for them! These exotic materials eventually turned into bridges, the first semester project for Physics 4 Ab. Building bridges taught students the answer to the burning question: Who's bridge could hold the most weight? Stephanie Clark's bridge accomodated greatest mass at 15,000 grams.

The same Physicists designed and built air propelled cars to discover the principles of friction and acceleration. A side benefit was the speed achieved by each car.

As far as students were concerned Ken Brown taught all future chemists to figure formulas, $2Mg + O_2 \rightarrow 2MgO$, $AX \rightarrow A + X$, because college entry required such knowledge. Lab experiments dealt with composition of formulas, decomposition of different masses, and volumes and densities.

The biological highlight was frog dissection. Supposedly those who dissected learned lots about muscles and internal organs, as science marched forward!

Chile Spices Up History

In World History Freshmen studied about ancient Greek Gods while Juniors enjoyed American-Freedom Spirit as they learned about the Constitution. The 1982 November election fascinated the Seniors as they debated the Pros and Cons of the candidates.

The wild adventures of Gilgamesh kept the attention of most of the Freshmen. "Famous People Who Helped Build America" was the topic for the oral reports in Mr. King's US History Class, while in Mr. Winberg's students presented reports on the "Western Movement." Tracy Halverson even brought in some of Joe Kooper's Spicey Texas Chile to add Pizzazz to the oral report.

First time Assessment Fees for sports was a big issue in the government classes as guest speakers Superintendent Kline; President of School Board. Dr. Paden came to talk on the subject. Seniors learned about the three branches of government: executive, legislative and judicial. The highlight of the year for seniors was the field trip to Alameda Municipal Court.

English Readings Have Moody Heroes, Lovers And Fighting Families

The ancient argument over the golden apple once again became a source of interest as freshmen pursued the Trojan War in The Iliad as a part of their English classes . They moved from apples and war to love and family dissention as Romeo and Juliet prompted discussion and study.

Euripedes' tragic Medea and the wanderings of Odysseus formed the ancient readings in sophomore World Literature. The equally tragic Cry, the Beloved Country also hit home.

Sin and punishment were the topics of conversation as the juniors watched a videotape of The Scarlet Letter. Witches and judges were acted out on the dramatic scenes of The Crucible as well.

Moody heroes like Macbeth and Hamlet and bloody, lusty tales told by the squat shouldered lump-of-pins called the Miller filled senior hours as they learned to enjoy the Canterbury tales. Blood and gore caught the seniors too as Beowulf once again slaughtered the Monster Grendel.

Public Speaking Is Speeches and Debates

Lectures, discussions, student evaluations, video and audio cassetts were methods used by Norman Robinson to push forensic familiarity. Controversial issues debated and evaluated by students included prison reform, school dress code, and birth control. Everyone learned to argue with style and call such arguements; Debate! On the subject of prison reform, Stephen Schroeder argued that the state of California should replace our current institutions with new facilities featuring private rooms and co-ed prison living in an attempt to rehabilitate those incareserated "that new facilities would cost too much money."

The class had thirty students, some seniors, some juniors, and a few sophomores. Everyday life in Public Speaking was demanding for those who wanted to enhance their subjects and reached a tentative agreement before they presented them to the class in the tutored tones of vibrant vibratto voice.

Je Remue Le Cafe Avec M'orteil Won't Prove Any Linguistic Smarts

"Je remue le cafe avec m'orteil." The response from Monsieur Glen Fong was probably, "No! No! You are saying, I stirred my coffee with my toe!"

What a famous phrase. It was enough to turn a Foreign Language teacher's hair snow white. The class sizes also helped as over 350 students in 14 classes learned how to "habla Espanol" or to "parle francais".

The entertainment of the Foreign Languages was provided by the teachers. M. Fong showed his slides of France — some students speculated there were more picturesque pictures than those provided: The gambling continued in Senora Elizabeth Rice's Spanish class. "Lo Tengo" once again dominated Fridays for the bingo freaks, and Senora Jauna Motaung's entertainment was strips of celluloid called film. Her students saw everything available except "Pablo Eats a Chili" or "The Exotic World of Tango".

Special Students Strive For Diploma

Take one advisor plus one aide, add nine students, mix well and you have created the "Special Day Class" at Encinal High School. This educational innovation had great goals. The class was aimed towards independence, self direction, and a high school diploma.

Their advisor Patricia Pedersen and aide Eve Wiltins taught skills in language, math, and history. The students used flash cards, and play money to make math more interesting. The students involved in this program attend this class for up to five periods a day, having one or two classes outside of this unrestrictive learning environment.

"The Resource Room" as it was called by teacher Carol Haynes was directed towards pupils with learning disabilities. This class offered tutorial services for those who required extra help with certain subjects. For some this was a scheduled class, and others just dropped by when difficulties arose. Students who were scheduled into the class received the individual attention that was lacking in the larger classroom. With these special education programs, all students benefited from school, whatever their degree of learning.

Talented People Fill Art Classes, Even Win Prizes

Illustrate a children's book, make perspective drawings, slosh around water colors, these were some ingredients of art. One hundred forty eight students signed up for Sculpture and Drawing and Painting I-IV. They happily viewed themselves as the future Rembrandts' of the world.

Marion Nicosia felt her students creativity produced some excellent high-school art. She was particularly proud of Bernie Kim's outstanding costume designs, and Terry Campbell's clever cartoons. She indicated her talented artists who painted in oils were Mike Greaney, Laura Schmitz, and Kelly Chambers. Raquel Jaurze and Alex Lopez shared honors for their super-graphic designs. During the year the Women's Christian Temperance Union sponsored a poster contest and offered a prize of $100. Mike Greany entered his poster titled "The Evils of Drug Abuse" and won! He was $100 richer and proved Mrs. Nicosia had students to be proud of.

Crafts hummed with activity as Bob Ruark's students took slabs of cold clay and crafted them into pinch pots that eventually became designer home decorator pieces! Many student-craftsmen viewed themselves as a future world famous ceramics designers.

Hard Working Students Tackle The Industrial Arts Revolution

Why Industrial arts? Why not. It provides certain skills for making a career out of the industrial field. Besides, it gives an opportunity to people who aren't otherwise inclined.

Some of the fields that are categorized under industrial arts are Mechanical Drawing, Wood Shop, and Metal Shop. These classes offer different kinds of skills, making it a difficult decision on which class you want to take. These are excellent fields to get into because most of the students who have taken these classes seem to be proud of what they've acheived. So take a chance, do something for your country! Join the Industrial Arts army. Be american.

Workshops And Hands-On Experience, Aid Students In Job Placement World

"I need a summer job, but I don't have the skill, Where can I learn job market skills?" Thoughts like these boggled the minds of students as they neared the job age. The Regional Occupational Program and the Business Department taught students these skills.

Programs ranged from: Bank Telling, Retail Merchandising, Word Processing, Typing, Computer Data Processing, Automotive Tune-up Transmission Control, Sewing and Cosmetology. Cosmetology taught at Alameda Beauty College demanded 1600 hours to complete. Future beauticians even gave up 8 hours on Saturdays, so someday they could work with Vidal Sassoon. The Automotive class used hands-on experience on mock-ups to teach job related experience. The new Wang Visual Display Word Processor taught students transciption and the skills necessary to secure an entry level job as Word Processing Technician. The basic data processing cycle help prepare students for work as computer programmers or system analyst.

These courses weren't the easy "A" classes. Many came with Prereguisites ranging from typing 40 wpm to one year in Auto Shop experience with the consent of Instructor. Two hours was the average time demanded for each class. On completion of the courses over 300 students were also aided with job placement at local beauty salons, automotive repair agencies, service stations, and business offices. Many felt 2 hours was a small sacrifice for skills that would last a life time.

Computer Technology, Basic Typing Skills Are In, Shorthand Is Out

Fifteen classes made up the Business department. With an average of 25 students per class. Shorthand, Typing, Computer Science, Computer Technology, Accounting, and Word Processing were the courses offered. The two Barbaras, Jolliffe and Porter, combined with Raul Ybarra and Steve Capling to instruct 375 students.

As computer technology moved ahead, shorthand may well become as extinct as the dinosaur, speculated Steve Capling. His computer classes learned how to run a program and load it onto a diskette. As for Raul Ybarra's typing classes, they learned how to center a paper to type a business letter on both manual and electric typewriters.

All of the subjects in the business department were taught at E.H.S., whereas some were taught at Alameda High in previous years.

Homemakers: On Their Way Up!!

Nowadays there's Halston, Gucci, and Calvin Klein. Perhaps twenty years from now, former EHS students will be making New York fashions. It's possible.

The first step of the ladder is enrolling in a clothing class. This year's beginners learned how to use sewing machines, pressing equipment, and button hole makers. They not only learned how to choose suitable fabric, but how to repair and care for clothing. They also studied current consumer education.

The second step is advanced clothing. Students learned more advanced clothing construction, which included matching plaid at the seams and making Christmas decorations. These students were then told about the careers open to those with a clothing background.

Home Economics wasn't only sewing, it was child care, too. Students enrolled in child development studied pre-natal care, birth, and care of children from infancy to age five. Guest speakers came to class with their small children (some as young as two months old) and talked about their experiences. The class planned to visit the alternate birth center, delivery room, and nursery at Alameda Hospital, and visit some nursery and pre-school programs throughout Alameda.

Band Breaks Traditions Due To Financial Difficulties

Financial woes hit the 1982-83 E.H.S. Marching Band as minimum funds forced the band to miss away football games for the second year in a row. Another second featured Irma Reyes as Drum Majorette; she followed Patty Green who was the first female "leader of the band" since 1959.

Following tradition would have meant practicing in room 701 every Monday afternoon and marching on the football field to learn the formations for the remainder of the week. But this year since the band only played at home games, the practicing schedule varied. The band was accompanied at their marching sessions by the flag girls, who managed themselves and made up all of their own routines.

In November, the 60 member band held a candy sale to raise money to rent buses for some upcoming events. They succeeded in funding over $1000, enough to provide transportation for three trips. They also raised money for a day at Marriott's Great America, something everyone looked forward to. Other events included the Shriner Game, the St. Patrick's Day Parade, and a Band Review in May.

The band provided entertainment and beautiful music for various audiences.

Jazz Ensemble Fills The Air With Music

With an ear for music and rythm, students joined their talents together in Jazz Essemble.

The first fifteen minutes of each day were spent on exercises, which helped musicians and instruments warm-up. The basic exercises were seventh chords and mode exercises.

On Febuary 5 musicians performed at a California Music Festival, held at Chabot Junior College. They performed a Winter Concert, which was held on Febuary 24 in the school gym, for the school. Jazz Essemble also joined their talents with the Alameda High School Jazz Band, on April 14, which was held for the school.

These musicians had a chance to solo in various concerts: Eddie Niiya, Alto Saxaphone; Richie Tuazon, Tenor Saxaphone; Anthony Harris, Trombone; Jeff Oh, Trumpet; Ben Reyes, Piano; Steve Gary, Guitar; and Pete Lisanti, Drums.

Choir Performances: Classics, Rock, Pop

Thirty students who really liked to sing enrolled in Lucy Kinchen's second period choir. For the better part of an hour each day they vocalized. The first pay-off for all that practice came at Christmas time when they gave a performance for middle school students and caroled for senior citizens in local convalescent homes.

The spring performance held in April included classical, sacred, spirtual, and current popular songs. "Rock in Jerusalem" was a favorite but they also enjoyed Kenny Roger's "Lady", "Good Morning Starshine" from the movie Hair, and "Battle Hymn of the Republic". The boy vocalists performed Chicago's number one hit "Hard to Say I'm Sorry", which featured soloists Edward Brewton, and Diomey Pondoc. At the end of the performance the outstanding Seniors recieved their Annual Choral Awards, given for Best Vocalist, Most Improved, and Best Attendance.

Blue, Gray, White Mandatory Colors For P.E. Students

Color coordinated physical education fanatics filled P.E. classes. Blue, gray, and white became the only colors worn in P.E. The required uniforms prevented students from wearing sweats to class and to P.E. without changing clothes after a great workout.

The 360 students who enrolled in Phys. Ed. began their athletic program with either football or volleyball. In September, one of the hostest months of the year, the E.H.S. pools were in constant use. Swimmers kept cool with the exception of early morning classes when the heat was minimal. Maria Phraner taught jazzercise, and the girls who participated in this strenuous dance class had a few guys to share the strain with. When November rolled around basketball was popular with the boys in first and sixth period P.E. classes. Tennis and soccer were other major sports played.

Traditional physical fitness testing was held in the spring. Although the year started off slowly because of all the program changes, most students enjoyed the sporting life.

Chopperhops, Shoot-Outs Mix With ROTC Drill Team And Color Gaurd Trophies

Repelling, chopperhops, shoot-out at turkeys, as well as plain old marching, and military shine told the story of the ROTC program. Col. Bud Dixon, Senior Army Instructor, planned a number of the events for the cadets. On Oct. 11 and 12, they repelled at the University of California Berkely Coliseum. The coliseum's sixty foot walls were perfect for repelling. On Oct. 29 and again on Nov. 12 they toured the Alameda Naval Air Station. They even included a helicopter ride over the Bay Area (courtesy of the U.S. Navy). The chopperhop impressed many students as they had never ridden one before.

The cadets marched in two parades. Alameda's own 4th of July Parade, where the drill team and the color guard brought home 1st place trophies, and the Veterans Day Parade on Nov. 11th.

Shooting turkeys, otherwise known as "The Annual Turkey Shoot", was switched from Thanksgiving to May due to a necessity of changing from .22 caliber rifles to air pellit rifles, which were not available until spring.

ROTC enrollment climbed over preceeding years with the addition of fifty-five new cadets. Benji Reyes, an EHS senior, was Batallion Commander and Frank Dickey, an AHS senior was assistant Battalion Commander. This situation developed because ROTC was combined between both high schools. All of the cadets came out of the class even more qualified to face emergencies and how to react in a leadership position.

Leadership Students Aid Our Community

Dances, Blood Drives, Spirit Week, Book Drive, and Shirt Sale were just a few of the things leadership was involved in. Leadership did a number of things to help the school and community. Tom Nelson served two terms as Student Body President joining just a few people serving two consecutive terms as president.

In December, a second grader was killed in a tragic car accident. Leadership sponsored a special dance the night before school closed for Christmas vacation. "Holiday Magic" was the dance and the magic was that the profit made was donated to the Steffins family in memory of Chris. The profit was $800. The same dance also helped out the Marine "Toys for Tots" program as the tariff for entry was reduced to $2.50 provided a toy for a tot was donated. On Sat. Dec. 18th Marines picked up large cartons of toys. The Marines and Christifor Stephens parents appreciated the help of the leadership class and of Encinal High School.

1983 Yearbook Staff A Screaming Success

During the year often a person would walk by room 10, stop, listen, and then continue on. Screams, banging of desks, and sounds of people smashing into the wall could be heard. A Punk Slam Dance? Well guess again, that's right it was the 1983 yearbook staff. Despite the craziness, the stapler rapping on Advisor Art Roke's desk, and the echoing of Editor Rashmi Garde's piercing voice through the class room, it was a successful year.

It was the largest staff in recent years, with twenty-two members, the work load was lighted, but the confusion increased. With not enough croppers and working typewriters there were always lines of staff members at deadlines waiting to use them. They yearbook staff switched from Taylor's to Josten's Yearbook Company. Over the summer the largest staff in history collected over $5,200 in advertisements breaking all previous records. Despite the problems, the yearbook was a great success. As the saying goes, "If you culd survive yearbook you could survive anything!"

Cross Country Men #1 Fast Female Goes To State

Our Jets won the first Cross Country Varsity ACAL title in Encinal's History and the Girls had an equally impressive season as they won all but one of their dual meets. Joe King had a lot of talent to work with, as it was the largest team in recent years.

Three Varsity Runners ran 500 miles over the summer. Workouts were 4 to 5 miles a day. The team practiced at Crown Memorial Beach, Willie Stargell Field, and made an occasional trip to Joaquin Miller Park. For variety Coach King held the sacred scroll and banana relays as workouts.

Varsity Boys were undefeated in all dual meets, with Alex Lopez taking 1st in 5 meets. The team placed 3rd in North Coast and participated at Meet of Champions.

JV Boys triumphed in all their dual meets, and closed their season with a final win in the ACAL JV meet.

Jennifer Thatcher won the Girls ACAL Championship. The girls came in 3rd at ACAL and 5th at North Coast. Jennifer took 7th at NC. At MOC she had her best race coming in 3rd and qualifying for NorCal. At this meet she placed 22nd in a field of nearly 150. For every Athlete it was a memorable and VICTORIOUS SEASON.

JV Football Season 10-0 Frosh Post 2-2-2 Record

The junior varsity football team won all ten games without any losses. The accurate passing of David Rider, the hard running of Tom Cook and Jessie Mimms, the defense led by Shaun Edwards, and the coaching of Don Grant and Roger Young all combined to let the J.V. team romp through the league.

The coaches stressed the basics of football, especially in defense. The highlight of the season came in the Alameda-Encinal game. With one minute twenty-two seconds left, Shane Berlin ran back an Alameda fumble on the Jet twenty yard line. The J.V. team walked off the field chanting "we are ten and 0."

The freshman record was 2-2-2. Even though they didn't have a winning season, they learned a lot about the game under the leadership of coaches Chuck Fehely and Ed Araujo.

Outstanding Jet Defense Makes Season Memorable

Noble's men humbled the mighty and were humbled in return. For the "Jet's" the season seemed endless.

The Varsity started by beating the number one ranked East-bay team; the Arroyo Dons, 33-28. Because Marina High closed, the Dons had 29 returning players and they were tough. The Jets were tougher and fall football started with victory. Their next opponent was the El Cerrito Gauchos. Their secret weapon was Nathan Reddit, a top-ranked running back. The Jet defense held Reddit to 33 yds. on regular offensive drives; however, as he also played Gauchos special teams he gained 100 yds. and 1 TD. Our defense was dedicated to do their best, but offense lacked the explosiveness necessary to bottle up the Gauchos. The final score was 14-0.

The season seemed longer than usual, particulary when the Jets lost key players to injuries. Brad Rivas had a jaw injury, Eddie Groves arm wound up in a cast, Al Sayward shoulder seperation reoccured and the list goes on. JV players such as Larry Carr and Junior Osoimalo moved up into the varsity slots.

At the end of the season, Eddie Groves was selected for All-league first team. Derrick Nereu, Nacito Sanchez, Dale Leonard, Pat Rose, and Lyle Robles made 2nd team, and Barry Kruse achieved honorable mention.

NCS Victory Highlights Winning Season; Nine Returning Netters Lead Team

The fourteen member girls' tennis team, with nine returning seniors, was led by North Coast Champion, Caroline Yao. She was the outright singles winner of the Alameda County Athletic League, with a thirteen win, zero loss record. She defeated her North Coast opponent in a tough three set match, crowning her the 1982-83 women's singles champion. Also, last years' ACAL Champs, the strong doubles team of Marla Miyashiro, and Caroline Villaflor, reached the ACAL finals.

Coached by "rookie" Ken Brown, the girls' tennis team finished third, with a winning record of 8-6. At the annual Sports Awards Dinner, special recognition went to Caroline Yao, for Most Valuable Player; Lynn Viduya, for Most Inspirational; and Jennifer Lim for Most Improved.

15, The Magic Number For Volleyball

Twenty-five dollars to participate in athletics was the charge levied by the school district in our age of tight money and rising costs. One result of that charge was the turn out of fewer girls when Volleyball try outs rolled around in early September. Twenty girls tried to make the team but only fifteen were picked.

The girls played eleven league games, unfortunately they only won four. Fifteen points was the greatest Varsity score during the season, and it came when they upended Harry Ells 15 to 10. Our spikers met Harry Ells a second time in the season and again outscored the Ellswomen 15 to 8.

Everyday practice included fifteen minutes of Volleyball basics. Such work outs included a half-hour of spiking and an equal amount of time devoted to serving. These daily drills were followed by an inter squad scrimage.

Jet Hoopsters Stuff 88 Points As High Score, J.V.'s Take 13 Victories

The 1983 Varsity Basketball season was one of many losses, but much learning. The team had four returning lettermen and four J.V.'s from the year before.

Top scorer for the Varsity was Gary Mann who averaged 14 points per game. He was followed closely by Brad Rivas with 10 points per game. Top rebounder was Pat Rose with an average of 8 rebounds per game. Gary Mann had no shabby average as he had at least 6 rebounds a game.

The J.V. Basketball season was one of great promises for the future. Their season ended with 13 victories and only 3 losses. Hopefully that record meant lots of talent for next year's squad.

Top scorer for the J.V. Basketball Team was David Rider averaging 15 points per game with many assists from Cornell Childs. David Ryder also was the top rebounder averaging 10 rebounds per game followed closely by Charles Smith with 7 per game.

Varsity scores ranged from a high of 88 points against J.F. Kennedy to a low of 37 when Piedmont super scored against the Jets.

Girls Capture Second Straight ACAL Title

The Varsity Girls Basketball Team captured its second consecutive Alameda County Athletic League Championship without a loss. The girls were underestimated by coaches and newspaper columnists throughout the season, but when they almost defeated Campolindo, the NCS 2A champions, and led them throughout the game, they were given a bit more of the respect they deserved.

Led by six returning players, they brought out a league record of 14-0, and an overall record of 19-5, with most of the losses attributed to their great height disadvantage, a factor superior speed, quickness and ball handling skills could not always overcome. Their second tallest starter was 5'5".

Their perfect league record did not come easy. Hours of late night practices, many laps around the track, and the coaching of Nolan Darnell were the backbone of the team's success. Pacific and San Leandro put on strong challenges once again.

Three players received All-League honors: Vielka Oristil, Robin Elmore, Vycelka Oristil. Rose Wong and Judi Kanto received honorable mention.

Head Coach Noble Retires, Varsity Wrestlers, Champions

Pete Noble ended his seven year career as the head wrestling coach for EHS with a bang. His varsity mat-men were never perceived as champion caliber in pre-season polls; however, they finished the year as co ACAL champions with Albany. They recorded 4 wins and 1 loss.

Five senior wrestlers captured ACAL titles and advanced to NCS, they were: Roy (Sarge) Shelton, Terry Campbell, Temple Campbell, Rick Montez, and Dave Heskett. Terry Campbell was the first wrestler ever in league history to attain ACAL titles four consecutive times. The spirited leadership of team captains Temple Campbell and Rick Montez combined with Coach Noble's inspiration headed the Jets on their way to the top.

Coach Noble's career record was 51 wins, 1 loss, and 11 ties. He led his wrestlers to 3 ACAL co-titles and 3 outright titles. In 1981 his varsity grapplers conquered the North Coast Section, winning by 57 points. 1982 was the year that Noble's Jets shattered ACAL records, these were; most wrestlers scoring places: 13; most consecutive first place champions: 5; most second and third place winners: 7; most wrestlers going to NCS: 12; and most points scored in an invitational: 213½! Coach Noble's returning wrestlers were sorry to see him go, for he was an inspiration both on and off the mats and even more, he was a friend.

New Coach, Tough Defense —Jets Soccer Take 3rd

The Encinal girls soccer team with a strong defense survived the 1983 season with a record of 3 wins and 5 losses. The Jets placed third in A.C.A.L. play. Evidence for the remarkable defensive effort would be that they held their opponents to a total of seventeen points.

Thirteen girls were coached by the new man James Turrentine. Between 2:30 and 5:00 p.m. the soccer team practiced daily on drills that sharpened offensive skills as well as defensive.

Several Jets were recognized for their efforts by being named to the All-League. Seniors Becky Patty, Stacey Matthews, an unanimous choice, and goalie Judy Kwan were named All-League players as well as Junior Jessica Bennett.

Encinal Swimmer Makes Jr. Olympics, Teammates Aim For Top ACAL Times

Splashing, kicking, and gurgling were all familiar sounds at the Encinal swimming hole. With an average of fifteen swimmers, the team worked out everyday. Warm-ups from swimming 300 to 500 yards, and work-outs were up to 3500 yards.

Returning from last year were Ray French and Greg Matthews, who went to the Junior Olympics this year. Adding a few new faces to strengthen the team, one was Marshell Haynes who was clocked at 1.05 minutes in the 100 yds. backstroke. These energetic swimmers were all planning their strategy for the end of the swimming season to place at the league meet and perhaps go on to compete in the North Coast Section. The swimmers hoped that their talents and hard training would pay off and put them up with the cream of the crop.

Coach Matt Loger, the AAU coach, coached again for the Jets. He kept the kids going even through the RAINY WEATHER. No, it was not a beach party or a place to get a deep dark tan, but overall it was a fun year, with the exception of swallowing a little water here and there.

Girl Swimmers Work Long Hours, Bid For RBAL Title

Sun, rain, or clouds never stopped the 15 gals who went out for the Girls Varsity Swim Team. With the help from their coach Matt Lager they practiced from 2:30 to 4:00 p.m. every afternoon. They improved their times, and mastered the Butterfly, Back, Breast, and Freestyle strokes.

Practice usually started off with a warm up of twenty laps or 500 yards of one of the following strokes: Butter, Back, Breast, and Free. Then came practice sessions on flips and turns. Swimmers who aimed for better times used the clock to try for forty-five second laps, ten times before the day was over.

Returning Varsity swimmers from the previous year were: Kelly Chambers swimming the Breast stroke; Kerri Ely, Butterfly; Lisa Gallagher, Freestyle; Jackie Cohen, I.M.; Jenny Romanoff, Butterfly; and Mary Johnson, Breast stroke. They all worked together to make the team have a better turnout than what was expected.

Boys Tracks Makes A Run For ACAL Crown

Reigning ACAL Champs, the boys track team looked for another ACAL Crown to add to their collection. Don Grant's "83" track team stresses overall talent, depth and a few rising stars.

The strengths of this years team were in the sprints, distance, and various field events. Most notable were seniors Anthony Harris and Pat Rose in the pole vault and discus. Harris and Rose planned on surpassing school records in their respective events. Anthony Harris pole vaulted 14-1 at press time to beat Willis Kellar's 13 year old record of 13-9 but looked for the higher heights. Pat Rose, school record holder, planned on hurling the disc past his personal record of 172-6. Both these athletes looked forward to going to the CIF State Meet in Bakersfield.

Other athletes rose to the top in the ACAL. Outstanding distance runners were Alex Lopez, Darrin Banks and David Boone in the mile and 2 mile respectively. Tom Nelson again tried to close in on the 110 high hurdles and 330 low hurdles school record. Once again Lawrence Lagdamen blazed past the field in the 100 meters.

Many track workouts consisted of distance work of 8 miles and speed work after for distance runners. Sprint workouts were made up of ladders. 440's, 330's, 220's then back up again and short distance work along with starting block practice. Field events-men separated to their various events to practice throwing and jumping.

Coach Don Grant's tracksters looked for a final confrontation with league rivals at ACAL Finals, with relish. With all the depth and talent who could challenge them.

Hard Workouts Meant A Good Girls Track Team And Bid For ACAL

Running, jumping, and throwing were included in the work-outs of the girls track team. Joe King worked with the jumpers and distance runners, Linda Read with the discus and Shot-putters, and Don Grant with the sprinters. The workouts were hard but everyone knew they would pay off by the end of the season.

The team competed in 17 different meets, or relays, with under 20 girls everyone had to compete in at least 2 events in order for the team to get enough points to win.

Linda Read, head coach for her first year, kept the enthusiasm up with meetings during lunch on the day of all the track meets. The meetings were held in order to get everybody psyched for the meet. This helped the girls on their bid for the ACAL title.

Varsity Baseball Seeks ACAL Title With 11 Jet Stars

Rain destroyed the opening of the baseball year. The first three pre-season games were cancelled due to rain and more rain. Eventually the sunny weather came and the Jets with ten returning lettermen took on St. Elizabeth's and drubbed them 8-1.

Possible future big league names included 1982 All-ACAL pitcher Eddie Groves who became a double threat as he played at shortstop and relief pitched. All-ACAL honorable mention player Todd Conley took on the majority of the pitching chores and occasionally served as shortstop. To prove that alumni never fade away, Tim Marr came back to school as coach. It was strange to see baseball players practicing in the gym, but the rain never hindered coach Marr's ability to hold practice even though it ruined the pre-season openers.

Mother Nature Rains Out Softball Practices Yet Jets Pull Triple Plays

With rained out practices and preseason games the four veteran-eight rookie softball team got off to a slow start. The softball players spent their time putting glov-o-lium on their mitts when they should have been on the field, but Mother Nature didn't want them to start playing on March 1.

Veteran Michelle Parazin carried all the pitching duties on the team but was well backed up by four year veteran Terri Wong on short stop and rookie first sacker Becky Patty. Second base rookie Jane Dalisay played an integral part in the triple play executed by the Jets in the Pinole Valley game. Terri Wong caught the ball, threw to Dalisay who, in turn, fired it to Becky Patty. It was the first triple play of the season.

Another first, quite unfortunate for the mighty Jets, happened in the game on April 15 against Harry Ells. The Jets Softball team lost to Harry Ells 13-14 and it was the first time in five long seasons that the Harry Ells team had ever won a softball game. Not letting this loss upset their teamwork, the Jets came up with a winning season.

Practices! New Coach! Makes EHS Tennis Tough

Slam! Slam! Slam! The thunderous thwacks that the racket emits as it batters the tennis ball across the court unfortunately, that was not the noise echoing from the tennis courts.

The 1983 Encinal Jets tennis season began with a new coach, Ken Brown and 23 tennis enthusiasts. The 23 players soon trickled down to 9 varsity and five J.V. players. Among the varsity were 4 lettermen from the previous year. Senior Art Pereyera was the #1 player. The 23 players were of varied skills and talents. The daily practices between 2:30 and 4:00 p.m. were therefore used to work on drills on how to keep a longer rally and proper volleying.

It may not be slam, slam, slam, but at least the Jets tennis of '83 built a solid attitude of "let's win, win, win."

Sports Participation Soars as Athletes Excel

Hundreds of students participated in after school sports. The sports that were offered to students were Football, Cross Country, Volleyball, and Girls Tennis, which were held from September to November. From November to February, Wrestlers, Soccer players and Basketball players practiced after school, for at least 3 hours a day, for up-coming games. Boys Tennis, Swimming, and Track were offered in early February.

J.V. Football finished their season with 10-0. Unfortunatly the Varsity loss to Alameda 3-0, but there is always next year! With the lack of participation the J.V. Girls Basketball team was cut, which left only Varsity.

Students who excelled in various sports were Carolyn Yao who took first in North Coach Tennis. Alex Lopez took second in Cross Country League Meet. Jenifer Thatcher placed first in Cross Country A.C.A.L. All in all the year ended successfully for students who participated in sports.

Water Madness Is Frosh Introduction To High School Life

Thrashing and splashing water, the young class of 1986 held a fun filled swim party. The water madness was held at our very own swim center on Tuesday September 28th from 3:30 to 6:00 pm.

Much organization was needed to promote this first "frosh event". Each advisor had a responsibility to fulfill in order to make the party a success. Art Roke did the publicity, George Read guarded the pool, Robert Ruark borrowed the big burger grill from the Elks and Ed Winberg sold the food. The freshmen furnished the hamburgers, soda pop, and for those who had hunger pangs, they sold hamburgers for $1.00, soda for $0.50, and chips believe it or not were free! Free ice was provided by Pacific Fresh.

After the students finished eating, some chose to relax in various pools, and others decided to catch some sun. The swim party provided the freshman class officers, Mike Vanni, Elaine Rosete, and Gemma Kim, a chance to compare summer vacation notes and future plans for the class of 86.

Seniors Turn Italian As Pasta Feed Posts Profit

"Fire burn, and cauldron bubble, making spaghetti is a lot of trouble!", so said Steve Kempster as he tossed hamburger from the skillet into the tomato sauce. The cauldrons boiled as pasta by the pound cooked and became the base for the senior feast. Nineteen and other seniors joined Steve as the chef-of-the-day who converted the cafeteria into Il Ristorante D'Italia. They shredded lettuce, cut tomatoes, made salad dressing, and turned endless loaves of French bread into garliced French bread. The cooking part was fun but Sharon Sherak who supervised the garlic graters and sauce stirrers also made the crew scrub the pots and pans until they shone.

At five p.m. the doors were thrown open to the public for feasting. By seven o'clock the larder was bare but the class was richer by $350. However, the pure profit was only $200 and that wasn't bad considering it was based on 150 customers. For the most part everyone agreed "That's Italian" with, of course, the exception of McDonald's famous orange drink and the little ice cream boxes.

Fast Food Workers Earn Princely Sum: The Minimum Wage

Most jobs had "perks", thats slang for benefits that go with the occupation. In a survey of student jobs the "perks" included extra hamburgers, all the popcorn you could eat, or even a free bite from a local dog! Student earning power came primarily from fast food chains; they hired seven EHS students at McDonalds, six at Burger King, two each at Jack in the Box, the Rustler, the Sizzler, and Pacific Fresh. While there was always something to eat only a few food factories produced "tips" for students. Most of the jobs revolving around minimum wage) although a few fellow students received the princely sume of $3.45 an hour. In one case the extravagent emolument of a waiter reached $3.60 an hour.

One EHS student claimed to be a bona-fide Physical Fitness instructor in a local athletic club. There was some doubts among his peers especially after channel seven's T.V. expose of the film flam tactics of adult health spas that claim to make your body beautiful.

Another EHS student spent his Saturday nights delivering wine and spitits for a local liquor store. All deliveries were "adults only"!

While most students worked at fast food chains, there were a fortunate few who worked at more "professional" type jobs. These included a veterenarians assistant, volunteer hospital workers and a dentist's assistant. Most of these students were paid an even $5.00 an hour. One medical entrepeneur in town had the audacity to pay $6.00 an hour to his student help.

Living Costs Soar, Nikes, Movies Up, But Gas Is Down

According to the newspapers inflation was down to 3.5% during the last year; however, as far as students were concerned the cost of everything was up. A good pair of Nikes were about $20.00 three years ago but by 1983 they were about $30.00. $12.99 purchased a pair of Levis, three years ago, but today at least $16.99 plus tax was needed.

For those who drove cars, the gas glut reduced the price of gas to less than $1.00 by early February; but an increase in the federal gas tax was due in April. The following is a comparison of the prices in 1976-1983.

Cots! Plasma Packets! Disaster Drill? No, It's The EHS Blood Drive!

*People lying on cots! Plasma packets! Scores of adults and students being tested and asked peculiar questions. Was this the Senior play reenactment of a M*A*S*H. episode or was it one of Encinal's monthly disaster drills? It was neither. For the fifth straight year Encinal High School in conjunction with the Alameda-Contra Costa Blood Bank presented the annual "Blood Drive".*

Officially dubbed "Operation Relay", students and adults from around the community donated their blood on December 3, 1982 from the hours of 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; 81 people filled into the career center during various hours and by the end of the day 81 pints were collected. Seventeen year olds for the first time needed no parental signatures in order to donate. The donated blood was then rushed to people in desperate need or put into stored "accounts".

Recent illnesses, newly pierced ears, lack of Geritol and other various reasons prevented some people from helping out. For those who did give, their reward was giving other people possibly another lease on life. For the donors who believe in aesthetic rewards, there were always cookies, lollipops and juice.

Club Members Devote Time To Raising Money

A kalidescope of clubs dotted the rooms of Encinal. Over two hundred students participated in clubs.

As the popularity of home computers and video games rose so did membership in the Electronics Club. To excell in math, english, and history was the goal for the California Scholarship Federation's sixty-two members.

For most clubs, raising money was a necessity. The main hall became a haven for plant enthusiasts as the Future Farmers of America peddled their goods to eager students.

Close Up engaged in many fundraisers, including car washes, candy and plant sales. Donations helped to send more then a dozen students to our Nation's Capitol in Febuary.

The Spanish Club was fun for members who wanted to know more about the language and history of Spain and Mexico.

Each club ended it's year with the election of new officers, and topped off the year with on and off campus parties.

Clubs Serve Students' Varied Interests

Clubs provided students with opportunities to make new friends, give them a chance to travel, serve their community, and compete with one another.

Over thirty students in the Travel Club, spent their time raising money to fund trips to Alcatraz, Jack London State Park, and Pier 39. To top off the year members gave themselves an end of the year party where they spent the weekend basking in the sun and relaxing near the pool at Mrs. Mc Kees ranch.

Good weather, record snow fall and adequate funds helped send sixty students to the ski slopes of Kirkwood and Sierra Ski Ranch. But on a warmer note the Multi Cultural Club also held an end of the year dinner and also sponsored a picnic at Chabot Lake for over one hundred of its members.

Raising money was not all that important for the Key Club because their focus was community service. Just before Christmas they sponsored a canned food drive to aid needy families. Interests other than money also led students to room 206 which was a haven for twenty eager students who wanted to compete and learn more about the oldest game in the world, chess!

Fundraisers: The Key to Success of Clubs

The most popular fundraisers for clubs on our campus were car washes, candy sales, button sales, and plant sales. Close-Up was the only group to have a work-a-thon; and sponsors donated so the members could visit Washington D.C. for one week.

The Key Club funds paid for their California, Nevada, and Hawaii district convention in April at Sacramento. Their third annual canned food drive helped needy families at Christmas time.

The Science Club turned clone masters after they purchased an introductory plant cloning kit.

The Travel Club visited many places, including Nevada city, Jack London state park, and Sacramento. However, to travel meant paying for gas; therefore, they really liquidated their assets.

Soph's Madhatter's Ball: New Wave Music, Unusual Hats, & Multicolored Lights

The annual Soph-Hop was a smashing success bringing in about $950 for the Class of 1985. The dance, entitled the "Madhatter's Ball" was held in the gym on October 15 from 7:00 to 10:00. Students paid $2.50 to enter if they had both a hat and a student body card, $3.00 if they had only a student body card, and if they came without either it was $3.50.

There were hats galore at the Madhatter's Ball, the most common being baseball caps and cowboy hats. Many students, however, went off the wall and donned giant sombreros, McDonald's employee hats and even a styrofoam rooster.

City Lights, a music and light show group working out of Berkeley, played new wave music like "I Ran" by A Flock of Seagulls and "Vacation" by the GoGo's. Strauss waltzes weren't part of the program but that old favorite by the B-52's, "Rock Lobster", echoed and bounced from one madhatter's hat to another. The music slipped around the dancers and the place was in motion.

The light show which bathed the gym in a multitude of colors was a welcomed addition for the dancers.

Spirit Squads Hard Work Pays Off With A Superior Trophy and Blue Ribbons

Encinal Varsity Spirit Lines . . . Everything you could possibly want for a fun and exciting year. Spirit, dedication, and hard work were words whose definitions were well known to the 17 girls who put many long hours and much expense into their efforts to make the 1982-83 lines a success. They began the year with one goal in mind: to generate school spirit.

The hard work began early in June when the girls started to prepare for the USA Spirit Camp they were to attend in late July at U.C. Santa Cruz. Beginning as early as 8:00 a.m. their claps and voices could be heard echoing throughout Washington Park. Ranking Superior, they returned with blue ribbons and a superior trophy. With all the new material brought home, the work load was doubled and practice continued as usual.

During football season, pep rallies were held on the front lawn allowing the entire student body to participate. The squads led the crowd in many new cheers and chants and performed entertaining skits. At the games they supported the teams and kept the spectators yelling no matter what the outcome of the score.

Unlike last year, basketball season brought no change to the girl's enthusiasm. They continued to work hard to support Jet Pride.

With the help of advisor, Linda Nelson, and Heads, Toni Manibusan and Joan Sullivan, the girls learned that the spirit of Encinal just "Can't Be Beat!"

Lunch Has Deli Delights If You Have Wheels, Lawn Games And Food For Others

As long as the weather was right, EHS students enjoyed different kinds of lunches everyday. Lunchtime activities ate-up most of the time set aside for eating.

Because many underclassmen didn't have cars, they had to take advantage of the facilities, namely the cafeteria. For those who did have means of transportation, McDonalds or the nearest deli was the place to eat.

After eating, the rest of the lunchtime was used for those in clubs and classes to decide pertinent matters. New clubs such as Electronics and CSF used the hours trying to think up new and different ways to make money for their miscellaneous club needs. Other lunchtime activities included frisbee throwing, football, basketball, and the most fun of all having private conversation with your friends.

Shortened Week Does Not Dampen EHS Spirit

Despite a three day Spirit Week at EHS, the school was filled with decorations, costumes, and fun. The three themes were class color, class theme, and school spirit day.

Class color day was bright with the Freshmen in yellow, the Sophomores decked out in orange, Junior's in their color green and the Seniors in vivid red. Lunch time activities this day included relay races and class spirit constests.

The second day brought all walks of life to EHS. Creatures from the jungle, alias the Junior class crawled through the halls, and the freshman revived the 1950's. Various super stars made guest appearances (sponsored by the Senior class) and the Sophomores dresses as Punks, a new wave fad for teens. The Spirit rally was held in the gym as Spirit Week continued.

On the final day EHS was united in blue and white with the Spirit Assembly, the climax of the week. Finally the Spirit trophies were awarded. First place went to the Seniors, with their Hollywood Hall contributing to their victorious feat over the Junior's Jungle. All in all the short week was exciting for all those who participated.

Big Crosstown Game Were Jets Victorious?

Warm and sunny weather provided perfect conditions for the 28th annual "Big Game." The crowd turn-out was incredible; the bleachers were filled goal to goal. The suspension mounted as three quarters went by without a point scored. Late in the fourth quarter two events climaxed the game. The scoreboard lights went out with three minutes left, which created chaos on the field and off. Beliving the game to be over the fans roared. Not known to the crowd, with one minute left the Hornets won 0-3 with a field-goal.

The football game was not the only event taking place, but there as another competition between the opposing spectators. The Jets gained spirit earlier in the day when they worked togeather to eradicate the signs of vandalism left the previous night by the cross-town rivals. Throughout the game, Jets bombarded Hornet ballons as they passed through Jet Territory. Angela Boone, a hyped jet, further boosted spirit by shooting down the Alameda mascot, "Buzzy Bee."

Half-time festivities were highlighted by the presentation of a plaque to the Alameda Time Star for all the coverage over the past years. The game may have been a technical lost, but the high emotions and spirit achieved by the Jets made them the real winners.

Homecoming Returns Class And Tradition

Red roses, formal attire, glittering crowns, and classy tradition reappeared in the Homecoming of 1982. The Senior class nominated thirteen boys and girls for King and Queen. The nominees had to have a 2.0 GPA and be involved in extracurricular activities. Ten finalist were chosen by the Student Body. On November 10, Tom Nelson and Toni Manibusan were crowned King and Queen at the Spirit Assembly. The Court included: Tim Sipe and Judi Kanto, 1st runner up; Celito Huergas and Barbara Galera, 2nd runner up; Ron Duenas and Desserrae Anderson, 3rd runner up; Barry Kruse and Angela Boone, 4th runner up.

At the Homecoming Dance, under the spot lights, the Court danced to "A Penny for your Thoughts" played by D.J. Nick Haper. A cascade of balloons signaled the end of the Dance and Spirit Week.

Holiday Delights: Turkey Treats And Bountiful Presents

Christmas presents were unwrapped and the turkey dinner was gobbled up, but only a few dressed up and went "Trick orTreating." The Tylenol scare scared most kids right out of their costumes.

Turkey with stuffings and gravy was a familiar sight in the dinnertable of most families for their Thanksgiving festivities. The Christmas spirit was already in the air long before the season began. People started their Christmas shopping way ahead of time. Sweaters, Garfield stuffed animals, the famous Ralph Lauren Polo shirts and preppy alligator shirts were high on everybody's list. Bountiful christmas presents were found underneath the christmas trees, despite inflation. Everybody came back from their vacation relaxed yet complaints were heard that the vacation was too short.

Boosters Push "Crazy Ties" Gimmick, Fill Dance, and Make a $700 Profit

By 7:00 p.m. Jan. 28 with $3.00 in one hand and a student body card in the other, students lined up for the dance. Some people cut their costs to $2.50 as they also wore a "Crazy Tie". For those who had neither ties nor cards the entry fee was $3.50.

The dance featured a contest with awards for the largest, smallest and craziest ties. Tom Lopez won the $10 first prize; Ken Kahn lined his pocket with the $5 second prize, and Shawn Edwards came in third, winning two free movie tickets.

The $700 earned from the dance went into the Booster Club fund and was given to the Athletic Department at the end of the school year.

Frosh Candy is Cash or Cavities

The Freshmen class started off well with a $250 gift from the Class of '82. A swim party, two car washes, a candy sale, and a candy gram were part of Freshmen life. During Spirit week they sold the "Jets' #1 finger" and raised $30.00. The candy sales were the biggest fundraisers. About eighty people sold M & M's (plain or peanut), Reese's, Charm's suckers, and lollipops. All that candy may have helped local dentists, but it also made the class treasury reach $666.15.

Every Tuesday they had a class meeting. One or two representatives from each advisory attended these meetings where they planned future unique fundraisers.

Madhatter's Ball Chief Fundraiser For Sophs

The Madhatters Ball pulled in over 900.00 dollars for the class of "85". The annual soph-hop was held on October 15, 1982. The clever theme and the reasonable prices attracted over 600 students.

Their other successful fundraiser were the two soph car washes, which brought in over $500.00, and the flower and candy sales which brought in $900.00. With the help of class sponser Jon Mederios, and the organazation of class officers most fundraisers were very profitable.

"SOPHOMORES GO PUNK" was the theme that helped the class of "85" place third in spirit week compition. With the cooperation of spirited tenth grade students the halls were decorated and the students were very proud of their work.

Class of '84 Looks for Financial Success In '83

Financially successful in '81-'82, the juniors returned to school in September with a $1300 bank account. In order to build up the account, the officers scheduled everything from flower sales to car washes in the year.

Starting in September the money mad moguls of '84 scheduled and worked a car wash a month. February had the distinction of being a two car wash month. On the average each car wash produced $1.00 or $2.00 per car. Two flower sales, one just before Valentines appealed to those who followed Cupid; the second celebrated the first day of Spring.

The annual "support your local dentist" candy sale and the spring dance given by the Juniors rounded out the typical and traditional junior year.

Fall President Tommy Chan, Vice-president Tony Daysog, Treasurer Eloise Castil;o, and Secretary Tina Duenas worked the class as hard as they did because they were well aware of the cost of Senior Ball and Senior Events. On the average, a great San Francisco hotel ball-room was $3000 for an evening. As a result the senior year could be very expensive if the class treasury was bare. The Spring Officers: President, Tommy Chan; Vice-president, Tony Daysog; Secretary, Eloise Castillo; and Treasurer, Missy Johnson; adopted the same philosophy and the class of 1984 pushed ahead in their drive to be financially ahead of the inflated cost of being a senior! In their freshman year the class motto was "Open the door for the Class of '84!" perhaps it should have been changed in their junior year to "Open the vault for the class with the cash!"

Seniors Experience Trials and Triumphs

The Senior-Junior prom, held at the Sheraton Palace on April 22, 1983 was the year's highlight for the class of '83. Class presidents and sponsor Glen Fong led the class in raising money for the grand finale. Their most successful fundraiser was the annual Spaghetti Feed which brought in $300. Other fundraisers included selling carnations and mistletoe, "flying high with the JETS" bumper stickers, the Sadie Hawkins dance, and a car wash.

Of the several problems the Senior class had to deal with, the main one was participation in weekly class meetings. An average of twenty students out of a class of 245 attended them. Another obstacle in funding the prom was the cancellation of the Winter Ball.

The Seniors won the first place trophy during Spirit Week with their theme entitled "Senior Celebrities" The Senior hall was covered with silver stars, posters, royal blue metallic curtains and an almost to scale Hollywood sign.

Sadie Hawkins Profits Handsomely As Seniors Abolish Old Traditions

For first time in years there was no marrying Sam, no divorce booth, no "studly" who married fourteen gals in one night. The class of 83 for unknown reasons abolished or dispensed with all the old fashioned traditional "Sadie Hawkins" standards; yet the annual Sadie Hawkins bash held February 25th in the gym from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. was a success. Admission varied from $2.50 w/S.B. card to 3.00 w/o. Above all, seniors made a profit of $550.00, pleasing not only those who went, but also the class of "83" which sponsored this fund-raiser.

Under balloons and streamers students danced to songs from groups such as, The Go-GO's, The Clash, Chicago, and many more. There was a great turn-out of several hundred students, and a fantastic time was had by everyone who went and moved their feet to the ongoing music.

The Logs: Encinal's Mecca For Smoking & Socializing

Many pilgrimages were made each day to the wooded area on the corner of Central Avenue and 3rd Street known as the Logs. Friends made the journey alone or in groups to sneak a cigarette between classes. A mass exodus to the Logs was a daily sight at the beginning of each lunchtime.

It was a familiar sight for Log regulars to see Frank Hanna and Ken Biba making their rounds with walkie-talkies in hand.

As many as fifty students at a time crowded the Logs at lunch, playing frisbee or catch, skateboarding or just hanging out smoking and socializing. It was a Mecca for those who followed the preaching of the tobacco industry.

All Time Hits, Mime Mu-Sign, Hypnotist: Assembly Highlights

Students applauded, roared in laughter, cheered, screamed and yelled at the top of their lungs as the awesome assemblies of the year took on the show. Mu-sign's comeback was more than welcomed. The audio handicapped dancers' stunning and versatile talents never ceased to amaze the students as the audience strained their necks to watch the Mu-sign dance to punk and new wave tunes. The crowd was even more amazed, though, as twenty students were hypnotized by Prof. Lew March. While under hypnosis, The students stuttered as they tried to say their names. The audience even got a special treat, the guys on the stage performed a strip tease act while others who thought they were Hollywood stars signed autographs for eager fans. The crowd couldn't keep still in their seats as they watched Cary Frianvocich perform a Mime act and balance a dollar bill on his nose. He, too, was great.

Fashions Flashback To 1950's Shorter Lengths In Pants And Skirts

The clean-cut look of the fifties was a definite fad this year. Styles were short in every aspect. Pant and skirt lengths rose from ground level to mid-calf, above the knee or higher. Men prefered hair cuts resembling the military or the "GQ" look. Hair was cut closer to the head and revealed fashionable geometric earrings. In shoes, comfort was the main goal. Spike heels were out and low heels were in. Fold-down boots in suede and leather with a heel that was less than an inch were a fad. Pennyloafers and argyle vests adorned both guys and gals.

"Never say diet", but drink diet drinks. Tab was among the throng of favorites. More companies started taking sugar and caffeine out of drinks. Home computers were a must and prices ranged from $800 to $1500. Companies found something to please both mind and body.

Senior English Students Compose Sonnets

Last fall Senior English students composed sonnets from Shakespearean models. Fourteen lines and written in iambic pentameter were the restrictive patterns that the students had to follow. In a shakespearean-modeled sonnet, the first twelve lines are divided into three quatrains which must represent different aspects of the theme, while the concluding couplet is a "summing up" statement. Since the assignment was written primarily by seniors, some obvious topics included the long awaited event in June — Graduation Day!; while some focused on their unpredictable future. Not only did the students offer us their thoughts, they offered us something everyone can relate to as well.

SCHOOL

School should be a place to enjoy,
But I have found it rather a bore
With all the techniques it does employ,
Such as English and its folklore.
I would rather spend my time in the sun
With a couple of friends at my side
All having a day full of rest and fun
Next to a cooler with cold brew inside.
But I am required to attend school
Each day after tedious day
So that I may become something besides a fool
And have a job that will pay.
It really isn't that bad of an invention
Because it's all done with a good intention.

Jim Case

3-LEAVED ROSE

In Math Analysis do I despair,
An assignment that requires such a skill
As when I sit in hoping to prepare
My mind for this mathematial drill.
My number two pencil so fresh and new,
The graph paper itself, so square in shape.
I begin to work at what I must do
Using my book held together by tape.
I draw and connect the numerous dots
While being revealed is my small wonder,
I smooth and erase the various knots
'Cause now my paper is free from blunders,
I'm done I look to see what has arose
It is none other than my 3-leaved rose.

GRADUATION

When comes the time for graduation day,
We will leave behind the good times we've shared
We will soon sit back and glare at the bay,
While remembering the good friends who cared.
The memories we have will last forever.
The dreams of succeeding in life draw near
As we enter the cruel world together,
But there is no reason for us to fear.
We must reflect on the learning we had
Because we all deserve the very best.
Thinking about leaving high school is sad;
Our leaving will soon be put to the test.
In years to come we will be old and gray,
But in our minds our memories will stay.

Sandy Macasieb

DAY IN JUNE

As we look back in time at the past years,
We sit and think where all the years have gone.
As we grow older we conquer our fears
But we will foresee our future anon
You're not the only one in this big world
So don't take the world upon your shoulder
Someday you will wonder why you have quarrelled
We are not children, we are much older
We will be entering the big world soon
So lift your head up and holler out loud
That our big day will soon arrive in June
And we will be sitting pretty and proud
We will jump for joy in laughter and pain
And wonder about how much we will gain.

Barbara Cruz

TIME

Our time is like water flowing away
Never enough to satisfy our thirst,
Like a windy day, leaves blowing away
This is the trouble that troubles me worst.
Our moments are but waves breaking the shore
An exciting splash that drifts back to sea,
Happiness comes and is gone long before
We can accept it for all it should be.
Our time is like raindrops falling around
A sad reminder that dampens our lives,
Telling us all that it will all fall down
Against time can even the strong survive?
Like a dark bare shore during a low tide
Time is around us and we cannot hide.

MY LOVE

My love and I will stand the test of time.
As days pass by slowly our love will grow
Our love will be savored like a fine wine.
I realize that he is a friend not a foe
We experience many of life's joys.
He treats me like a queen of a far land.
He never treats me like one of the boys.
When we walk side by side he takes my hand.
He makes me feel like I'm walking on air.
He says I love you when the lights are dim.
He constantly tells me how much he cares.
How could I ever forget about him.
I could never forget to say I love you.
I hope the time comes when we say I do.

Tammy Fisher

MY REWARD

Run for fun. Ha! What a cruel joke I say,
For health, for pleasure some people will claim,
My mind will not buy it, only for pay,
But maybe, just maybe I'll do it for fame.
The sweat drops, the legs ache, oh what a time,
I must be insane to work in such pain,
My head swells with the rhythm of the rhyme,
For what advances, I ask, is my gain?
The competition, the race should it be,
The mirror of my work will be shown,
Only the outcome, when it is just me,
My progress is exposed, my strength has grown.
But what goal is it that I'm working toward?
Victory, sweet victory my reward!

Thomas R. Nelson

MEMORY

He stalks by night and strikes fear in my heart,
Attacks the dark recesses of my mind.
He takes my self and rips the core apart,
Distracts in front, surprises from behind.
The traitor haunts me, taunts me, plagues the me
That yearns to run away from all of it.
He steals the joy from my best fantasy
And with it shall his evil soul be lit.
My life alone is ever self-imposed.
Not wanting anyone else to be hurt.
My heart has been well sealed, too long closed
And I must always be on the alert.
Beginnings new on old foundations built,
But ever shall I be entrenched in guilt.

Eva Mah

DAYDREAMING

Lazy afternoons I think were made
For my thoughts to be far away,
Walking guilty through a forest glade,
Or sailing across a sunny bay,
And when I get to the other side
To walk upon a foreign shore,
People may stare and try to hide,
For I have stepped through a different door,
Adventure is fun for a time
But soon enough I want to be,
Where familiar streets and places are mine
With fond memories across the sea,
I come back to reality from my daydream when
To find the glass of milk I was pouring has spill the table.

Jamie Reilly

TROUBLED YEARS

Allow me not those painful tears to fall
When I reflect upon those troubled years.
Please help me learn to see beyond that wall
Which hinders yet protects me from my fears.
If only piercing pain could be endured,
And I could learn to live a life of hope,
But those vivid memories always stirred
A gamut of feelings I could not cope.
My future is so young and yet so bleak
For there remains no comfort, but despair,
In the harsh destinations of the weak
Whose sorrows and dejections I now share.
I pray to Thee, my dear merciful Friend,
To save my soul from its destructive end.

Nancy Guerra

LOST YOUTH

The days of youth are quickly passing by,
So fast that soon they surely will be gone.
My friends, they think about and so do I
What will become of us when childhood's done.
Will we be ever young and want to do,
The silly things that always made us laugh,
Or will with time, the memories we knew,
Be destined to become our epitaphs?
I wish to think that now and evermore,
Perpetual my love for life will be,
And bold enough I'll be to still explore,
The doors unlocked and waiting there for me.
I reminisce on times that have since past,
And hope my joy for life will ever last.

Talented Students Participate In Activities Not Offered At EHS

After school was freedom for some students to go home and watch television, got to a friends house, or to do some homework. But for others it was a time for practice, lessons, and more work. These special students participated in various activities that are not taught in school, or they took advanced programs of those taught at EHS.

At EHS we had many students involved in extra activities, which developed their talents and some even won prizes for their accomplishments. Mike Greany, an art student, won a poster contest for his painting against drug abuse, and Eva Mah was awarded for her essay on noise pollution. Bernie Kim put together a portfolio of clothing designs that she had created and was admitted to a prestigious school of design in Southern California.

This year we also had many performers in a variety of events. Anthony Daysog played the violin in a local orchestra and Jeanine Taylor was involved in many dance shows. Joan Sullivan received acting parts in productions by ACT. These students have shown that you can do anything you desire as long as you have ambition.

Joy, Sadness, Magic And Money, Unforgetable Memories of A Year

Tinged with sadness yet highlighted with joyousness was the story of 1982-83. On October 21, 1982 the class of '82 dedicated a tree and cornerstone in memory of Richard Gorman, our former Dean of Students. The Gorman Family watched as Superintendent of Schools Clarence Kline, Board President Dr. William Paden, and Student Body President Tom Nelson remembered Dick Gorman in a noon hour event with students and other members of the community present. Counselor John Bay died on March 28, 1983. He spent twenty-nine years helping students at Encinal as their teacher, counselor, and friend.

Christmas vacation started with a dance called "Holiday Magic." It was sponsored by the Leadership class as a fundraiser for Christopher Steffens, a Paden School second grade student who was fatally struck by a car at the corner of 5th St. and Central Ave. A second cause supported by Leadership was Toys-for-Tots and admission to "Holiday Magic" was reduced from $3.50 without a toy to $2.50 with one. The following day a truck load of toys were given to the U.S. Marines for their program and in January an $800 check was presented to Mr. Steffens on behalf of the student body.

The final joyous occasion occured when Joe King married Janet Morehouse on November 27, 1982 at the Sierra Lodge in Oakland. Invited to the ceremony were teachers (friends), family, and members of Joe King's cross country team who contributed to the joyous event by serving food and drinks.

The Year That Was

The year had its share of sorrows and hope. There was the Israeli assault in Lebanon. Pillars of smoke covered the amusement park in the war ravaged Beirut, Lebanon during the Israeli assault. Bloodiest of all was the vengeful massacre of Palestinians by Lebanese Christian Phalangists. Eight thousand miles away, Great Britain fought an improbable war to retake the Falkland Islands, wherein great warships were sunk by modern missiles. Elsewhere in the world, Polish tensions were eased with the freeing of Solidarity leader Lech Walesa. Secretary of State Alexander Haig exit office and John DeLorean's luxury car company was a bust and he himself was busted for cocaine conspiracy. There was also the imperial pomp for the fallen Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev and the glory of the fallen American Princess Grace in Monaco, was remembered. There was also the passing of two Hollywood legends John Belushi and Henry Fonda. Seven people died because of cyanide poisoning. Oakland A's Rickey Henderson's 130 stolen bases called for a celebration and so did the birth of the royal babe, Prince William Arthur Philip. The arrival of the egg-domed estraterrestrial brought a message of gentle wisdom to the world.

PORTRAITS

He Teaches Who Gives, He Learns Who Receives

Ralph Waldo Emerson

"Math, Language, Science, History, . . . Math, Language, Science History . . ." To a student at Encinal, this could be thought flowing through their mind. To many a student, 1982-1983 was a year of perpetual drilling on those mandatory subjects. One would wonder, what goes through the teachers minds. Were the Science teachers thoughts, "$E=mc^2$, . . . $E=mc^2$?"

No! In fact, many a teacer did more than just instruct students in their respective fields, they coached and took part in activities as well. Many teachers at Encinal were so full of energy, that they could be seen chaperoning at dances, car washes and many sporting events-just to release this extra enthusiasm. Besides being an energetic year, it could be regarded as the era of neat class rooms. Due to a reduction of the janitorial staff, the teachers extended their respective duties to remind students to make an extra effort to "keep the rows straight."

Retiring Faculty Members Who Will Be Missed

Ken Brown: a member of Encinal's faculty for the past twenty-nine years; held the position of Sciences/ Math Chairperson; an instructor of General Science, Biology, and Chemistry; a coach in basketball, football, and tennis; and a sponsor for the Science Club, Senior Classes, and the California Scholarship Federation.

Barbara McKee: a member of Encinal's faculty for the past seventeen years; teacher of all Social Science and English Classes; co-ordinator of the school MGM program; and a sponsor of the Travel Club, Future Teachers Club, and Close-Up Club. Regarding her future: Ranching in Sebastopol.

Retired Master Sergeant Roger Wallace: a J.R.O.T.C. instructor for the Alameda Unified School District for fourteen years, nine at Alameda High and the past five at Encinal; and a member of the staff that developed one of the best J.R.O.T.C. programs in the United States. Regarding his future: "I'm going to do anything I want, I'm going to do some photography."

Clarence Kline, Alameda Superintendent of Schools: a member of the Alameda Unified School District staff for thrity-two years; an instructor at John Muir elementary, then spent twelve years at Encinal High teaching social sciences courses while coaching baseball and basketball, and acted as advisor for the student council, yearbook staff, various student classes, and also served as Social Sciences Department Chairperson; served as adult school principle, administrative assistant to the superintendent of schools, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel, and then superintendent of schools.
